AN OCEAN HORROR.

One of the Ill-fated Vessels Immediately Goes to the Bottom.

One Hundred and Five of the Passengers and Crew Drowned.

The Aceldent Occurs During a Dense Fog-The Survivors Taken on Board a Passing Steamer — Their Stories of the Awful Disaster.

Py Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—[By the Associated Press.] The steamer Wieland of the Hamburg-American steamship line has just brought news of a collision off Sable Island, between the Geiser and Thingvalla of the Thingvalla line, which occurred at 4 o'clock on the morning of August 14th. The Geiser sank in five minutes after the collision, and 105 persons were drowned. The Thingvalla was so disabled that she had to put into Hailfax, after transferring all her passengers to the Wieland. The Geiser had 86 passengers aboard, 72 of whom were drowned or killed in the collision, and 14 were taken first on board the Thingvalla and then on the Wieland. The Geiser's crew numbered 50; 17 were saved and 33 were drowned. Capt. Molier of the Geiser was among those saved. The passengers of the Thingvalla, transferred to the Wie-land, numbered 455.

The Gelser left this port August 11th, bound for Stetten. The Thingvalia was on her way to this city, and was advertised to leave here on August 25th. A very heavy sea and dense fog were experienced through the night and in the early morning of the 14th. The Thingvalla struck the Geiser on the starboard side amidships. The boats then parted, and within five minutes the Geiser sank. The crew of the Thingvalla did all they could to save the Geiser's crew and passengers, while still in doubt as to whether the Thingvalla was dangerously fisabled, but, owing to the heavy sea, only stabled, but, owing to the heavy sea, only 31 were saved. No other vessel was near at the time.

The Wieland, on her way to this port, was 100 miles away. At 11:30 o'clock on the morning of the 14th, the Wieland was sighted. Signs of distress were made by the Thingvalia, and the transfer of passengers began. The sea was very heavy, but no mishaps occurred in the tradsfer of passengers.

"At 10 o'clock on the morning of August 14th we pass ed some wreckage hoating on the sea, and suspected that an accident had happened somewhere near us. A little later we sailed through a sea of oil and sighted a bruken boat of the Geiser. Aboue 11:30 we sighted a steamer to the northward about six miles off, and seeing that she had a flag of distress up, we ran down to her. It proved to be the Thingvalia, and Capt. Lamb of that vessel came to us in a small boat and begged us to take off his passengers and those he had saved from the Geiser. He said his own vessel was so badly injured that he expected her to slik at any moment. His forward compartment had been completely carried away from half way down from the deck to below the water-line. We sent out these of our boats and the Thingvalia lowered hers, and in five hours we had transferred the saved passengers and crew of the Geiser and also 455 passengers of the Thingvalia. The sea was very rough and the work of transferring passengers of the Thingvalia. The immense hole in the Thingvalla's bow was then patched up as well as possible and she started for Halifax."

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

The collision so far as known was caused by fog, and the chief officer of each vessel was on deck at the time of the collision, and Third Officer Peters told much the same story of the occurrence. He said:

"The tog was very dense through the night, and the first we knew of the vessel's approach she was upon us. She appeared on the starboard side right upon us. Both vessels attempted to steer off. The Geiser was struck opposite the engine-room amidships. The Geiser, being heavily loaded, was very low in the water, so that when the Thingvalla carried away her own compartment the upper part of the deck went over on the deck of the Geiser. The Geiser's deckhouses were carried away, and the state-rooms were smashed in and the occupants killed." He heard a bell ringing—in the Geiser's engine-room, and could not tell what the order was. Officer Peters ran on deck as soon as he heard the bell ringing again. This time it was to back, and the steamer had just commenced to reverse when the Thingvalla struck. The Geiser's whistle was blowing at the time. Second Officer Fergensen jumped for the Thingvalla's deck by some of the latter's crew. Annas Wieliea, a civil engineer of Minneapolis, one of the passengers on the Geiser, said: "About 4 o'clock on Tuesday

Dr. A. Aag wein of Copenhagen, a young Thingvalia's passencers. He made the following statement to an Associated Press reporter: "The voyage was uneventful until early on Tuesday morning. I had left

and I knew instantly that a collision had occurred. I ran to the deck and found that we had run onto the steamship Geiser. As I reached the deck the Thingvalla drew out of the rent she had made in the Geiser's side. Capt. Moller of the Geiser was in his berth when the accident occurred. He was one of the first to reach the deck. His arm was broken two weeks ago, and he was in his berth when the Thingvalla crashed into the room. He managed to climb aboard the Thingvalla as she drew back. He was not so much as touched by the water. The Thingvalla's crew did all they could to rescue the unfortunates, and obeyed orders promptly. The Thingvalla's upper deck was not injured, but her bows were broken in from a point 10 feet below the deck. The rent was about 27 feet in length, and ran back, above and below the water line to the collision bulkhead. Had it not been for that bulkhead the Thingvalla would have gone down tike a shot. Capt. Lamb, First Officer Petersen and Second Officer Fergensen were on the Thingvalla's bridge at the time. I afterward learned that Capt. Moiler of the Geiser had gone to bed and left First Officer Brown in command of the vessel. Brown was lost.

LIFE BOATS WERE PROMPTLY LAUNCHED from the Thingvalla, and the work of rescue began. Some of the Geiser's passengers and crew had reached their boats, but most of them were picked up from improvised craft, chicken-cops, camp-stools and anything else that would suit. The survivors had to hurry, as the Geiser went down stern first about five minutes after the crash."

The most wonderful escape was that of Assistant-Engineer Berthelsen:

"After the Geiser had gone down, and it was known that there were no passengers in any of the lost steamer's boats, the Captain had the bows of his own vessel protected as far as possible with straw mattresses and other material to prevent the water from entering. Distress signals were sounded, and the ship laid to for daylight. The fog lifted about 5:40 clock. Between 10 and 11 o'clock the steamship Wieland of the Hamburg-American packet line was sighted. She bore down to us and laid to within a short distance of our vessel. Capt. Lamb took a boat and went to the Wieland. Capt. Elibers of that vessel readily consenied to receive the rescued passengers and crew of the Geiser. The work of transferring was accomplished with only a single accident: A 15-year-oid boy, whose name 1 did not learn, had his legs crusned. He was one of the Thingvalla's passengers. A number of her complement were also taken aboard the Wieland. The sea had become somewhat rougher by this time, and there were many lively scenes as the children and oider passengers were lowered in slings to the boats. The able-bodied passengers and crew used the ship ladders. As we reached the Wieland, Nothing was too good for us. Even the passengers divided their clothing with the unfortunates from the Geiser."

The captain of the Geiser ladded the First intimution of the disaster to Capt. E. Borden-water and the first intimution of the disaster to Capt. E. Borden-water and the passengers divided their clothing with the unfortunates from the Geiser."

Nothing was too good for us. Even the passengers divided their clothing with the unfortunates from the Geiser."

The captain of the Wieland, upon reaching quarantine, telegraphed the first intimation of the disaster to Capt. E. Bordenhuser, general superintendent of the Hamburg line. Arrangements were at once made for the reception of the rescued passengers in New York. Surveyor of the Port Beattle and his assistant, John Whelan, together with the agent of the Thingvalla line, met the Wieland as she reached her dock at Hoboken.

High Jinks at the Second Precinct -Pistols Drawn and Bloodshed Narrowly Averted - The Cuddy Faction Successful All Along the

The Democratic primaries were held yesterday, and, with the exception of the "bloody First," there was no more disorder than is usual on such occasions. The police were out in full force, those not on duty be-ing conspicuous for their efforts in their chief's behalf in furthering his candidacy for Sheriff. It was rumored that there would be trouble in the First Ward, as a gang of toughs, among whom were Theo Bauer and Billy Manning, with 12 or 14 others, went down to the Southern Hotel about 12 o'clock, after a consultation with Chief Cuddy, and it was said that they went down there in his interest. At any rate, there was a big row, and there came very near being bloodshed, which was only prevented by the interference of the police. Below will be found the result of the bal-lating in detail: loting in detail:

second precinct. There was a lively contest in this precinct, and the vicinity of the Southern Hotel was crowded all day. This is the toughest precinct in the city, and it fully sustained its reputation. There were rumors of impending trouble, and a large number of police had been detailed for the purpose of keeping order, the presence of whom alone prevented bloodshed. There were two well-defined factions at this precinct, one Cuddy and the other anti-Cuddy, and after a tough fight the Cuddyles carried the day. The trouble first commenced shortly before 12 o'clock, when the officers of election were compelled to close the polls until a posse of police arrived to guard the ballot-box. When the officers arrived, the polls were opened, and the balloting was proceeded with. There were only a few minor rows until shortly before 6 o'clock, when the ganti-Cuddyles, it is claimed, seeing that they were beaten, raised a row in the street in front of the voting place for the purpose of drawing off the officers who were guarding the box, when they attempted to make off with it. The scheme worked pretty well, and Officer Lynch rushed out to put a stop to the fight, when a big Mexican named Ballestero jumped him and had him down choking him, when Officer Collins came to the rescue and knocked Ballestero out by hitting him over the head with his handcuffs, and the choker was placed under There was a lively contest in this prenamed Ballestero jumped him and had him down choking him, when Officer Collins came to the rescue and knocked Ballestero out by hitting him over the head with his handcuffs, and the choker was placed under arrest and sent to the police station. In the meantime, however, the other ruffians had not been idle. The election was held in a rairway in the building, and when they saw Lynch start for the street, a gang, headed by a hackman named Long John, made a breat for the startway. Officer Bowier, who was in charge of the box, started up the steep and when half way up drew his club to keep back the angry mob. At this time it looked as though bloodshed could not be averted. There was a howling gang of hoodiums at the foot of the starts. At the head of the staircase Officers Leverich and McKenzie stood with drawn revolvers, and at the foot of the steps Officer Fitch stood to keep out the crowd, while half way up was Bowler with the ballot-box. Seeing that they could not get the box, the hoodiums feil back. Some one shouted to the officers to put up their revolvers, and, after a short stop, the balloting was proceeded with. It is viso claimed that a number of revolvers were drawn in the crowd, but none were discharged. There was no further disturbance until about 9 o'clock, when a crowd attempted to force an entrance into the rear room, where the judges were counting the ballots, but there was no further disturbance until about 9 o'clock, when a crowd attempted to force an entrance into the rear room, where the judges were counting the ballots, but there was no further disturbance until about 9 o'clock, when a crowd attempted to force an entrance into the rear room, where the judges were counting the ballots, but there was too large a force of police present, and they gave up the idea of trying to interfere, and the count proceeded under a guard of blue-coats, that looked like war times, on account of the number present. The following is the ticket elected, there being 499 votes cast, of which it received 294:

THIRD PRECINCT. THIRD PRECINCY.

The voting place for the Third Precinct was at Lankershim's mill, and, with a few minor fights, passed off without incident, except that there was a creat deal of kicking at the open and flagrant manner in which the police force were manipulated in the interest of the Chief, and many of the the interest of the Chief, and many of the opposition were loud in their denunciation of this method of carrying primaries. The judges were very late in getting through with the work of counting the ballots, on account of the great amount of scratching, but the regular ticket was elected, as follows:

The polling place for this precinct was in the Supervisors' room at the courthouse. The regular caucus ticket was knocked out in this precinct, as was also the Cuddy ticket, it being claimed that he will not get a single vote in this delegation, which is about evenly divided between Taney and Rowan. The total vote was 552, the following being elected: Tom Keefe, Dr. Joseph Kurtz, A. Davis, Philip M. Gaffey, Frank Leaden, H. W. Peterson, Charles P. Kearney, John D. Schieck, E. S. "My wife attended several of these lectures, and became convinced that she was an invalid, although she had not been ill a day in her life. She possessed a constitution that would have done credit to a northern Indian, but this lecturer made her believe that she needed treatment, and she visited him at his office. She was treated, and then became convinced that she could carry on the same kind of a business, and today she is a divorced woman, and is running about the country playing doctor. He undertook to teach her the business, and she pays him a percentage. As soon as she got in with him, she left me, and acted more like a crazy woman than the mother got in with him, she left me, and acted more like a crazy woman than the mother of three children. We had a nice little home and were doing well, but my children are scattered, and she is running about the country with these cranks making money for that lecturer. When she sued me for divorce 1 let things go by default, for I was so thoroughly disgusted that I made up my mind to let her have her own way. It was 2:40 o'clock before a quorum of the Board of Freeholders put in an appearance, when the secretary called the meeting to order, and, on motion of Gen. Mansfeld, Maj. Bonebrake took the chair. officers, under the new charter had been fixed for 1891, when it should have been 1890.

After some debate, the Chairman announced that there was no motion before the meeting, and the matter was dropped for the time being.

Mr. Robinson offered an amendment providing that all intentions to change grades or improve streets shall be published in the city, and that the ordinance directing said improvement shall not take effect for 10 days after such publication. Carried.

Gen. Mansfield called attention to the section in regard to the water rights of the city, and moved that section 191 be so changed as to read "city" instead of "corporation," to make it correspond with the first section under the article, and the change was made.

Some other minor changes were made in the phraseology of the sections in regard to the water rights of the city, not materially changing the provisions of the section, but only making the law stronger, to prevent the disposition of the water through corporations, but that it must be sold and distributed by the Council directly to the inhabitants of the city.

Mr. Book called attention to section 15, and moved that "water and water rights" be inserted among the classes of property which it shall be lawful for the city to acquire, which motion was carried.

Mr. Book moved that the word "twice" be retained in the charter, in reference to meetings of the Council, so that the Council shall meet twice a week. Mr. Book said that one of the reasons why the citizens demanded a new charter was because the municipal affairs were not property looked after. Mr. Moore opposed the motion, saying that they might as well remain in continuous session. After further remarks, the motion was lost, notwithstanding the friends of the motion made a strong fight for it.

Dr. Kurtz moved that the Council be required to collect all taxes semi-annually,

A pale moon was shiring through the partly-closed blinds of a neat two-story house at No. 18. As the rays danced and the partly through t vibrated with the motion of a lace curtain they flitted across the room and rested on the locks of a golden-haired woman. There was no other light in the room, and no sound greeted the ear except the scratching of a pen as the young woman nervously traced her thoughts over the sheet. There was light enough in the room to show that the woman was pretty, and one could see at a glance that she was in trouble, for at the end of every line a sigh that seemed to come from the bottom of her heart parted her ripe red lips and died as it mingle with the palpitating air.

As soon as she filled the sheet that had been well watered with her tears, she folded it, placed it in an envelope and hurriedly wrote the address. She wrote letter after letter, which proved conclusively that she was not a love-sick maiden writing to a forcetful lover. But why should she be writing so industriously at that hour of the night in a semi-dark room? and why did she weep as she penned her mourning episties?

Another glance about the room displayed a small bottle that sat on the table next to her left hand. It was labled "poison," and when she seemed to be at a loss for a word she reached over with the left hand and gracefully fingered the death-dealing bottle.

After addressing six or seven letters she got up and quietly walked to the door and unlocked it. She then went to the window and gazed long on the quiet street. She seemed to be listening for some one, but there was no sound except the cry of a solitary nighthawk, as it wended if "way home, greeted her ears. She fell on her knees and seemed to offer up a silent rayer. She then slowly rose to her feet and walked to the table where she had spent so many hours weeping and writing.

The letters were placed where they could be seen by the first person who entered the room. The desperate woman then grasped the bottle and turned—her back on the moon. When she faced the pale light again over half of the liquid had disappeared from the bottle. With a steady hand she placed it on the table, and with a steady step she walked to a lounge and extended her shapely person on its soft cushions. In a few minutes she seemed to suffer great pain, and all was still. Her face showed that the hand of death had clasped her fair throat. There was no one near by to offer up a prayer for her troubled souls, but a peaceful, contented smile gradually spread over the face that had shown so much suffering only a few minutes before. Three hours later the moon was still standing guard over the face that had shown so much suffering only a few minutes before. Three hours later the moon was still standing guard over the face that had shown so much suffering only a few minutes before. The man hurriedly removed his shoes and staggered toward the lounge. He had taken only two or three steps, when the moon's rays seemed to pick the cold face of its victim up and place

Medical aid was sent for at once, and for some time the doctor worked over the prostrate form. He saw at once that the woman still lived but to save his life he could not bring her around, and he was about to give up, when she suddenly opened her eyes and smiled kindly on her husband, who had almost lost his mind from the shock. She motioned them all except her husband to leave the room. They did so, and then she explained her actions.

The explanation was kept very quiet, but it has leaked out, as all such things do. It seems that she made up her mind to teach her husband a lesson, and she concocted and carried out one of the most successful jokes that has ever been played on a recreant husband.

BOARDING-HOUSE SQUABBLE.

Dr. Parrock and Mrs. White Have It Out in Court. The time in Justice King's court yesterday was taken up with a rather peculiar case, in which the original amount involved was nominal, but which has put the county to considerable expense. Some time ago a Dr. Cavanner Parrock rented a room from Mrs. Lavinia White, at 1314 South Spring street. The Doctor claims that Mrs. Whit street. The Doctor claims that Mrs. White agreed to furnish the room completely, but that there were some window shades needed which he himself purchased. When he left the place he paid his bill, minus the price of the shades, and sent an expressman for his baggage. The landlady refused to allow his goods to leave until the bill was paid in full. The expressman returned and told the Doctor of the state of affairs existing, when he went in person. A dispute arose between the two, when the Doctor grabbed Mrs. White and pushed her behind the door, leaning his weight against it to prevent her getting out, while the expressman removed the boxes. Mrs. White swore out a complaint against the Doctor, charging him with battery, which came up yesterday. There were some 15 or 20 witnesses in the case and considerable hard swearing on both sides, and, after worrying through the evidence, the Justice took the case under advisement, and will render his decision at 10 o'clock this morning. This is a sample of the frivolous litigation with which the courts are burdened, which is merely an expense to the county with no good results. agreed to furnish the room completely, but Henry Vrooman.

Los Angeles, Aug. 13.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] In your editorial. "The Railroad in Politics," of this morning, in speaking of the Hon. Henry Vrooman, the following lan-guage is used: "The fact that Vrooman is characterized by the respectable citizens of Alameda county as a professional briber and corruptionist has, of course, no weight with that corporation. Such tools are all the more acceptable to them."

This writer once lived in Alameda county, and has known of Mr. Vrooman for 12 or 15 years, and, therefore, may be pardoned for saying that such statements as those quoted above can come only from a total lack of acquaintance with the man himself, and an en-tire ignerance of the feelings "of the respectable citizens of Alameda county." I remember Mr. Vrooman as a blacksmith, working at his forge county." I remember Mr. Vrooman as a blacksmith, working at his forge all day and studying law, mathematics and the classics at night, in 1872-73, and I know of him today, the first lawyer and citizen of his county, the trusted friend and confidential advisor of its best people while they are living, and their chosen administrator of their estates when they die. Upon this man, suffering as he does unendurable torments from a terrible and incurable heart affliction, in the State Senate great public and private institutions lean for support, with the absolute conviction that in his trusty bands, full and exact justice will be done.

The history of this Scate has no grander picture than that, of Henry Vrooman in the last Legislature, though rent with pain, leading his fellow-Senators—an opponent to all jobbery, the friend of all fair and just measures. There is no abler leader, no perceived.

measures. There is no abler leader, no measures. There is no abler leader, no better or more patriotic man, no more heroic character in the State today than Henry Vrooman, and when his fellow-Republican members gave him their full complimentary vote for United States Senator, they did themselves and their party honor. In these times, when men who have fled the track when their party needed help are creeping back and seeking leadership, it is a pleasure to know that such tried, true and able men as T. G. A UNIVERSITY GRADUATE.

A School of Journalism. Los Angeles, Aug. 14.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] I note the fact that Cornell University is inaugurat ing a scale of journalism. This innovation may be a success, but I doubt it. Will it teach the school to meekly listen to the gentle (?) reproof of the city editor, as he calls their attention to the fact that they have been gloriously "scooped," and learn them to formulate a valid excuse therefor? Will they learn to bear in silence the painful operation of that "blue pencil" as it vivisects and mutilates their "best lines?" Will they learn to submissively accept a midnight detail, in a driving storm, to the scene of a fire or crime two miles away and no streetcars running? Will there be a polytechnic department attached, wherein the budding journalists will be taught to hang to a transom by their eyebrows ing a serool of journalism. This innotechnic department attached, wherein the budding journalists will be taught to hang to a transom by their eyebrows while they report the proceedings of a political caucus? Will they "work in" the usual number of "dull thuds," "killed dead," "widow woman," etc.? When they write, "I kissed her sub rosa," or, "I kissed her under the silent stars." and it is printed, "I kissed her sub rosa," or, "I kissed her under the cellar stairs;" er, "A heart bowed down with grief and care" appears in the morning, "A heart boiled down with grief and care" appears in the morning, "A heart boiled down with grease and care," will they pass mirthfully over the matter, or will they secure a low-browed, thick-set club and lay for the proof-reader and the "slug" that set up that take"? After a cold, muddy, midnight trip of two or three dozen blocks to a fire, and they write a glo wing column of how "the devouring midnight flames leaped high in air," etc., it appears "Pat Sheeney's grocery was destroyed by fire last night; loss, $800; insured," will they resign? Will they be taught how to "work in" a "free line ad" for the cigars? Will they learn to cut a clean collar, shirt bosom and a pair of cuffs out of cardboard? Will they be taught to sit down on the curbstone and calmly write up an account of a fire in a six-story tenement while they be taught to sit down on the curbstone and calmly write up an account of a fire in a six-story tenement while the occupants, crazed with terror and pain, are leaping from the windows or falling back into the flames? Will they be taught to perch on the end of a tie by the side of a railroad wreck and serenely sketch the dying agonies of the passengers, count the dead and wounded and give an estimate of the loss to the company?

There are many other points to be learned which cannot well be taught in a "school of journalism." Practical work in a printing office is far ahead of any college journalistic curriculum.

An explanation.

What is this "nervous trouble" with which so many seem now to be afflicted? If you will remember a few years ago the word malaria was comparatively unknown—today it is as common as any word in the English language, yet this word covers only the meaning of another word used by our forefathers in times past. So it is with nervous diseases, as they and malaria are intended to cover what our grandfathers called bliousness, and all are caused by troubles that arise from a diseased condition of the liver, which, in performing its functions, finding it cannot dispose of the bile through the ordinary channel, is coupelled to pass it off through the system, causing nervous troubles, malaria, billous fever, etc. You who are suffering can well appreciate a cure. We recommend Green's August Flower. Its cures are marvelous.

The Late Wharf Franchise. It is a question whether Uncle Sam may not have something to say about the appro-priation of Rattlesnake Island for wharfage purposes under the franchise granted by the Supervisors to Capt. A. W. #### New England as a Custome

A pamphlet has been issued by the Arkwright Club of Boston, entitled, "New England as a Customer," in which a subject is enlarged upon that has not received the attention which it deserves-the interest of the West and South in the prosperity of the East. In the discussion of the tariff question there has been a studied effort on the East and West against each other. They hint that the manufacturer European rival on better terms if he had free raw materials, even were duties largely reduced. On the other hand, the farmer is urged to believe that the law is one-sided-that it proagricultural industry, which industry, he is told, employs far more persons than those who are engaged in "protected manufactures." It is the fallacies of this line of argument which the pamphlet in question seeks to dispel, and to answer the question: What interest has the farmer of the West and South in the maintenance of the American system of protection?

It should not be forgotten that most of the products of American agriculture are now protected, in the same way and to the same extent as are manufactured goods-by a duty levied upon corresponding productions of other countries. Such products are wheat, corn, oats, hay, potatoes, tobacco and wool. Cotton is an exception, but if southern planters felt the need of a protective duty on cotton, and asked for it, they would undoubtedly get it. Leaving out such considerations, however, it can be clearly shown that western and southern farmers derive a benefit from the product of the tariff on manufactured goods, little, if at all, inferior to that which accrues to the persons directly engaged in those manufactures.

The growth of New England is largely a result of the protective sys-At the time when that system was fairly adopted, south-ern New England was already an densely populated as it could be if dependent upon its own resources alone for subsistence. Yet some free-traders maintain that even New England no longer needs the protection of the tariff, because only a small minority of the people is engaged in industries which could suffer from foreign competition.

One free-trade authority says that less than ten per cent. of New England workers could, in any event, be affected by foreign competition. In reply to this, it is shown that, according to the census of 1880, 34 per cent. Months for Two Dollars.

Let us see how this affects the western farmer.

> New England does not raise a pound of cotton, although it manufactures consumed in the country; with eight per cent. of the population of the coun try it grows less than four per cent. of the wool grown in the country, although it uses one-half of the total clip; it imports most of its hides, lumber and iron. As to food, New Eng land would starve in a few weeks if compelled to depend upon what it raises at home. In 1880 it grew only one-fourth of one per cent, of the wheat crop of the country-only enough to feed 270,000 persons whole year; of corn, only one-half of one per cent. of the whole crop. In 1884 the main railway lines brought into New England no less than 470,000 tons of wheat flour and 950,000 tons of grain. This does not include the receipts by water routes. The meat brought in from the great West and consumed in New England is also very far in excess of that which is produced at home. Altogether, the provisions consumed in New England in 1880 can, by no reasonable estimate, be placed at less than $50,000,000 a year, which allows only twenty-five cents a week to each person.

Where can the West and South find a better customer than this? Certainly not in the United States. Outside of the United States, Great Britain is our best customer. In 1886'7 the total value of exports to the United Kingdom was $363,101.143, or $10.09 for each inhabitant of Great Britain. Allowing for increase of population 1880, . the value of New since England purchases from South and West for this year is not less than $310,000,000 or an average of $62 to each person, nearly six times the average to each person in Great Britain. Curtly stated. one New Englander is worth six times as much, as a customer to the South and West, as one Englishman. reduction in the tariff would not increase our exports to Great Britain. On the other hand, it would go a long way toward destroying our trade with ow as this. Henceforth Mr. Pixley New England. The question for our domestic market be ruined, without increasing the demand abroad for our agricultural products? No trick of argument can disguise the fact that the West and South can be prosperous only as their best cus-tomers are able to consume their products without stinting, nor can the East be prosperous except as its best customers, the farmers and laborers of the rest of the country, enjoy a good market. In other words, the California wheat-grower is just as much interested in the maintenance of a protect ive duty on manufactured goods as is the manufacturer himself.

A Coy Voter.

A correspondent sends us two clippings from the Herald, and asks if the statements they contain are true, intimating that our answer may influence his maiden vote and possibly his political life. The first extract quotes Mr. Blaine as saying, in his letter to the Philadelphia Press, in 1883: "It is wiser to tax whisky than to tax farms We cannot, at and homesteads." the moment, certify to the fact that these are Mr. Blaine's words, but in any case they are very sound doc trine.

The second extract states that during the Indiana Senatorial contest of 1886-'7, upon the nomination of Gen. Harrison, a district assembly of Knights of Labor adopted resolutions requesting friends of labor in Indiana to vote and work against him. To this we have only to remark that the fact that a set of men opposed Gen. part of the free-traders to array the Harrison two years ago should constitute no reason why our correspondent should not vote for him, provided might be able to compete with his he is satisfied in his own mind that the principles which Gen. Harrison repre sents are correct and such as our in-quiring friend would desire to see enforced. If our young correspondent abstain from voting for a man because tects the manufacturing, but not the that man has been attacked by some body, it is very palpably evident that hi maiden vote will never be cast. Let him brace up and vote for Harrison. unless he is sure some other candidat is better stuff.

AT a banquet in Berlin yesterday. the German Emperor declared that 46,000,000 Germans would die rather than deliver a single stone of Alsace-Lorraine to France. That may be true, but it only shows the extent to which people will go, under the glamour of a monarchical form of govern ment, to deprive their fellows of liberty. Germany holds Alsace-Lorraine by force of arms.

Excuses for criminals are continually multiplying. The insanity dodge has been about played out, and something new has to be discovered. The latest is the excuse set up for a defaulting clerk in a Philadelphia bank. whose attorneys claim that he was completely nicotinized by excessive smoking, and that his downfall was due to this fact.

THE Boston Journal very correctly remarks that "it is a good plan occasionally to put a strong temperance Republican on the same platform with the third-party leaders. It brings out the real malignant nature of the thirdparty agitation." These Prohibition leaders do not like to listen to argu ment, for they are sure to get worsted,

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—[By the Associated Press.] The immigration investigation was resumed today. Julius Oppenheimer, a manufacturer of cloaks, said that in former manufacturer of closes, said that in former years three-fourths of his employes were females. Today the sexes were about equally divided. Wages at present were 10 or 12 per cent. lower than 10 years ago. He did not think that immigration had anything to do with this.

The line of examination was susp while Congressman Ford Interrogated the witness as to the reason why Marion Pres-ton, who gave testimony before the committee, was discharged. The explanation was that his partner, Willinski, got excited after reading the evidence given by her, and on the impulse of the moment discharged her. "What was there in the girl's testimony that excited your partner?" asked Ford "Well, I don't know. She mocked Mr. Willinski's way of talking," said the wit-

The most interesting testim ony given to day was that of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. Chairman Ford asked him his opinion of the present excessive immigration. His opinion summarized was as follows: He considers that unhealthy and forced immigration is a curse to workingmen. Volun-tary immigration he could not find fault Volunwith. Gomper said that four years ago, when times were hard in Poland and the Jews were persecuted, Hebrew charity organizations were formed here and helped thousands of Polish Jews to this country. They were given employment in cigar and cloak factories, with the result that Americans were crowded to the wall, as the for eigners worked for very low wages. Witness said that the charitable men made money on their investment, and wanted issued an invitation to all the Republican clubs throughout the city and county for the selection by each of three persons to meet a like number from each of the other clubs at the Oro Fino's rooms, on Friday, 24th inst., at 2 o'clock p.m., for the purpose of erganizing a campaign conference committee to have full charge of club matters during the campaign. The call draws attention to the fact that conference committees have been organized in many places with good results.

While we in Los Angeles are enjoying the perfumes of the jasmine and the heliotrope, the unfortunate residents of Jacksonville, Fla., are inhaling coal tar, assafeetida, chlorate of lime and sulphur, which are being burned in large quantities, in the effort to smother the fellow-fever microbes. It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good, and Florida's loss will this year be California's gain.

In view of the very small margin by which the Democrats carried West Virginia in the last election, it would appear to be a profitable undertaking for the Republicans to concentrate their forces in that State. The first of these organizations represent the first of these organizations represent the first of the first o ents the entire telegraph service of the United States during the first 25 years of its existence. It includes in its member-ship the boys who handled the first rude innents at the time of their invention by Morse. When the armies of swept across the vast theater of war, some in the far West along the Mississippi, some marching on Atlanta, and others fighting on the bloody fields in Virginia, it was neces sary to keep in secret communication with the headquarters in Washirgton. This only could be done by means of the telegraph. Each army had its corps of telegraphers with it, and their duties were particularly arduous. The vexations attendant upon the incidents of camp life were theirs. They worked early and late, receiving and sending dispatches, translating ciphers and keeping in constant communication with detached corps and with headquarters. Sometimes the operator was exposed to peculiar dangers. Often during the retreat of an army he and his fellows would be left in the rear exposed to the enemy until the last moment, in order to take advantage of any hope which might be sent in the way of intelligence that reinforcements were at hand. Often the operator climbed the telegraph poles, and, connecting his instruments with a wire, would hold communication, while exposed to the galling fire of the rebel sharpshooters. He slept in swamps, and laid his life down on the battle-field as bravely as the bravest soldier. But the peculiar responsibility of the service lay with the cipher operators. There were about five of these in Washington and each general had one with him. The cipher operator received and interpreted dispatches of the most momentous nature. Often he had the password long in advance of the time when it was to be used.

Mr. E. Rosewater, editor of the Omaha Bee, had the password of the corps with which he was connected for weeks in advance, and when not even the General of the Army knew it. During the great civil struggle over 15,000 miles of wire were in operation, and over 18,000,000 messages were estimated to have been sent. About 1200 operators were employed, and nearly 300 were killed, wounded or capiured on the field of battle. Through the efforts of Gen. Rosecrans a bill was introduced in the House which recognized the value of their services during the war, and made provisions for pensions. This was ferfered and referred to comunities in the sary to keep in secret communication wit the headquarters in Washington. This only

House, and finally was passed with the exception of the pension clause. More delay resulted and finally it got to the Senate, where now with the exception of any pension provision it lies awaiting passage by that body.

This morning the "old timers" had a brief session, choosing the following officers: President, Col. Charles Taylor, Frankfort, Ky.: vice-president, Day J. Smith, Kansas City; secretary and treasurer, William J. Dealy, New York.

The next annual meeting will be held in Louisville, Ky., during the third week in September, 1889. After the return from the excursion, both organizations sat down to a banquet at Kinsley's.

Murder.
Montreal, Aug. 16.—[By the Associ-Particulars of a murder at ated Press.] Particulars of a murder at Coteau Landing, 40 miles from here, have just come to hand. Some weeks ago a cat-tle drover from St. Anicet named Alex H. Caza, told Elle, son of Pilon, hotel-keeper to Montreal and would return shortly for the purpose o getting married. Last evening young Pilon went to the 10 o'clock train from Montrea and there met Caza, who, being considera bly under the influence of liquor, wanted Pilon to drive him and his trunk and valise to the St. Anicet boat. They started for to the St. Anicet boat. They started for the landing, but when they came near the hotel Pilon refused to go any further, ag it was too dark. This angered Caza and hot words passed, during which Caza pushed Pilon off the wagon and kicked him. The words passed, during which Caza pushed Pilon off the wagon and kicked him. The noise brought down Pilon, senior, who tried to interfere. Caza, without the least warning, drew a revolver and fired, the ball striking Pilon in the heart.

After the murder Caza walked quietly back to Coteau station, and meeting two of the hands, asked them to have a drink. They assented, and after drinking he discharged his revolver at them twice. After that he remained hanging about the station till about 12 o'clock, when he was lost sight of. His trunk and valise were filled with fine wearing apparel, and a number of papers showing that he had at one time been at Butte City, Mont., and Murray, Idaho.

The murderer was seen at St. Polycarpe this morning. Caza returned last winter from the gold fields of California, where had amassed a fortune of $100,000. He married one of his cousins a few weeks ago. A life of inactivity was more than he could bear, and he became engaged in the cattle trade. He was about 35 years old.

He thinks Biaine's presence on the Pacific Coast would be a compliment that his people would appreciate, and that it would help the party. The committee has not decided the matter, however. There are some things that stand in the way of Blaine's going to California. Probably the most important point is the length of time it will take for him to make the trip. We think that we can hardly spare him from the East. Then, if he should go to California, Republicans of every State he would pass Republicans of every State he would pass through would want him to stop, and would be mad if he didn't."

The Senate Refuses to Postpone the Fisheries Treaty.

Gen. Schofield's Powers as Commander to Be Enlarged.

The House Passes the Fortification Bill-Noming tions by the President-An Agreement Reached by the Two Houses on the Army Appropriation.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON (D. C.), Aug. 16.—[By the Associated Press.] Scruete.—In the Senate today Mr. Morgan's motion to postpone the fisheries treaty till December was defeated by a strict party vote—yeas, 24; nays, 27.

Mr. Reagan took the floor on the President's annual message. During his speech Mr. Reagan quoted from Blaine's Augusta speech of vesterday the extract in peech of yesterday the extract in clation to trusts, and said that Blaine had taken upon himself to ridicule Cleveland's message upon that subject, and now posed as an apologist and defender of trusts. These remarks of Blaine would (with the noney and corporation interests of the country) add a new feather to the plume of that gallant knight and endear him anew to the hearts of the money lords. The American people were to be congratulated that the claws of the monopolistic oppression have been allowed to protrude from the velvet gloves under which they have been concealed. Blaine's jubilation had once more overcome his discretion.

Mr. Blair complained that the extract read by Mr. Reagan was not a full report of Mr. Blaine's remarks on the subject of trusts, and he sent to the Clerk's desk and had read the report from the New York

A conference report, on the Army Appro-priation Bill was then taken up, and Mr. Gorman, one of the conferrees, stated the grounds on which he had declined to sign the report, and on which he would vote against it. He admitted that it was a great mprovement on the bill, but the main feat ure to which he had always objected, and still objected, was that the entire appropriation for the construction of ordnance was placed in the hands of officers, and that no opportunity for competition was offered to inventors or contractors or owners of large steel establishments. He believed that he would, before the matter closed, offer a resolution for the appointment of a select committee to investigate the whole subject, and he believed that such an investigation would disclose a chapter of incompetency, extravagance, exclusion of private enterprise on the part of the ordnance corps that would be rivaled only by the disclosures as to the ordnance department of the English army. ure to which he had always objected, and to the ordn. nee department of the English army.

Mr. Allison, a member of the conference committee, said that it had never entered his mind that this would be the exclusive work of army officers. The first delivery of steel was to be is months from this time, and he had it in his mind, and supposed that such was the, plan of the conference committee, that there would be still two or three sessions of Congress in which to settle the question as to whether the construction of ordnance should be given to private establishments or should be done at the Watervilet Arsenal. He was not in favor of the absolute exclusion of private contractors.

contractors.

Finally the discussion closed, and the conference report on the Army Appropriation Bill was concurred in—yeas, 80: nays, 11.

House.—In the House the Fortification Appropriation Bill was passed without division.

division.

In the consideration of the morning hour Mr. Morrill of Kansas called up the resolution assigning May 2d and 3d for the consideration of general pension legislation, with a proposed amendment changing the dates to August 29th and 30th. After a vain attempt to secure a quorum, the resolution went over.

Mr. Richardson of Tennessee, from the Committee on Printing, reported back adversely the resolution directing the committee to investigate the assertion that the Public Printer buys felt for printing purposes in England. Accompanying the resolution was a letter from the Public Printer denying the tuth of the assertion. The resolution was laid upon the table.

Then Mr. Burnes of Missouri brought forward the Deficiency Appropriation Bill and moved that the House go into committee of the whole for its consideration, but on division the point of no quorum was raised, and a call of the roll failed to procure the requisite number.

Mr. Weaver thereupon made a motion revoking all leaves of absence except those granted on account of sickness, the revocation to take effect at the expiration of a few days.

Much opposition was made to this action, and an animated debate ensued, the motion finally being tabled.

Mr. Weaver gave notice that he would on next Monday, if the House was without a quorum, renew his motion.

Mr. Burns, in moving to adjourn, expressed regret that at this late day of the session consideration had been refused to the General Appropriation Bill, in which veteran Union soldiers were interested. He blamed nobody, but gave notice that he would, from day to day, demand consideration of the Deficiency Bill. Adjourned.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Proposed Increase of the Powers of Gen. Schofield. WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—[By the Associated Press.] The Senate Committee on Military today authorized the Chairman to prepare a bill giving to the Major-Gen-eral of the Army all the rights, privileges and powers that have been enjoyed by the General and Lieutenant-General when those offices existed. This action is taken so as to enable the Major-General to fill those special assignments which by law fall to the head of the army, and which are not provided for otherwise by statute.

THE FORTIFICATION BILL. Notwithstanding the fact that the House today passed the Fortification Appropria-tion Bill, Chairman Townshend of the Milition Bill, Chairman Townshend of the Military Committee Intends to push the report of the conferees on the Army Bill (which embodies a provision for a sea-coast armament, inserted by the Senate). A report must be first made to the Senate, but Townshend is hopeful of getting it before the House in a day or two. He says that, in his opinion, there will be no provision for fortifications this year if the House fails to concur in the confence report, as he is satisfied the bill passed today can not become a law.

San Lung of assault to murder wong Mew, whom he shot in the face in chinatown two months ago.

**Coleman (Wis.)** Aug. 16.—The jury today consistent of the propriation of the corner of sixth and the particle of the par trust arrested the building of a block on the corner of Third and D, and another near the Turn Verein Hall, and in several other places, all of which are now closed up and awaiting lower prices. If the $2 tariff had been taken off, even that reduction would, perhaps, have pushed these buildings along; but as it was added and added to by the mills above, the result is that the lumber that would have is that the lumber that would have gone into them is lying idle in our lumber-yards, and interest accruing on the outlay for it. Trusts, monopolies, tariff and overceaching real-estate men have a long and large account to settle up in the bistory of San Diego for the last two years. People know this, and it cannot be concealed. The masses will scarcely be hoodwinked into believing that it is cheaper to pay $42 per thousand for certain lumber than it is to pay $40. It is a king too much for one to believe such infernal nonsense—such devilish cheating. such devilish cheating.

A Brilliant Financial Exploit.

[Globe Democrat.]
In 1887 the Federal Government advertised for bids for 2000 blankets for the medical department of the army. The specifications were plain as to the texture and quality of the fabric, and the weight was to be four pounds. The lowest bids were one from an American lowest bids were one from an American manufacturer for $2.56 and one from an English maker for $2.25. There was a difference, therefore, of only 31 cents between the bids, the British figures being the price delivered in the being the price delivered in this country, minus the duty. Under such circumstances the natural inference would be that the Government would give the contract to the American manufacturer, and keep in this coun-try the money which they would cost, so that this money would go to the benefit of domestic labor. The illus-trious statesmen and reformers who are running the country just now, how-ever, did not take this view of the mat-ter. They saw a chance whereby the Government could make 31 cents on a blanket, or $620 on the whole transac-tion, and grasped it. The contract was given to England.

One of the national statutes permits One of the national statutes permits the Government to bring in free of duty any commodity which it needs for its own use. Under this law the 2000 British blankets were imported. The duty on these blankets at the regular 18c a pound and 35 per cent. ad valorem rate would be about $3016. To save $620 to the Government, the Administration, in this transaction, cheated the Government out of cheated the Government out of $3016 in revenues. Here was a clear gain of $2396 in cold cash—on the wrong side of the account. The $4590 sent out of the country represented a loss to the American wool-grower and to the laborer in the American woolen factory. The only individual benefited by the scheme was the British manufacturer. But is must be remembered that $620 was saved to the Government, although the Government lost $3016 in doing it. It was a triumph of statesmanship, a It was a triumph of statesmanship, marvel of diplomatic skill and sag city. It was one of the most brillia financial exploits of the century.

A Harr son Song.
[Adapted from 1840.]

Come, let us sing of a soldier.
That lives up in the West,

Of all the men for President
The wisest and the besc.

To put him in the Capitol
We've found a spendid way.

Oh! we'll sing a Harrison song by night,
And beat his foes by day.

Come, all the folks of every age, The old as well as young, There's not in all Columbia

A name more justly sung.

The b avest of the brave was he

When found in deadly fray.

Oh! we'll sing a Harrison song by night,

And beat his foes by day.

When gathered into council
Among the wise and great
He never thought to serve himself,
But wisely served the State.
As a teaman he. of vigor yet,
Although his looks are gray.
Oh! we'll sing a Harrison song by night,
And beat his foes by day.

There's news about election
Borne on in every gale.
A shout from every place is heard
And Democra's turn pale.
While freemen's voices gladly join
To catch the sound so gay.
Oh! we'll sine the Harrison song by night
And beat his foes by day.

Then raise the Harrison banner
Upon the ottuward walls.
The word is rolling trumpet-tongued,
The hero's rival falls.
The cty of victory rends the air:
Itswells the joy us lay.
Oh! we'll sing the Harrison song by night
And beat his foes by day.

FROM THE ENCAMPMENT AT ANAHEIM LANDING.

Falling Into Line-Routine of the Camp-Rallying Round the "Grub Pile"-The Canvas Town Growing Reception Tents - The Roll of Veterans.

ANAHEIM LANDING, Aug. 16 .- Special correspondence of THE TIMES.] This is my first experience in camping out, and really it's very "jolly" in the language of the small boy. Of course if one comes here expecting to find velvet carpets, lace curtains and parlor grands in every apartment, he will naturally be somewhat disappointed; but if he can pocket his luxurious tastes, forget his formality, and leave his tall hat and best broadcloth at home, giving himself up to pure, undiluted enjoyment and superb indifference to personal appearance, he will be happy and pronounce camp life simply delightful.

At 6 o'clock in the morning the reveille is sounded, and this is the signal to "turn out," as the boys say. It is, of course, the fashion here to use military terms in conversation—and, accordingly, I'm trying to "fall in" as rapidly as possible-and, really, I think I'm making very good progress for an The pavilion is used as a baliroom.

The pavilion is used as a baliroom, concert hall or general assembly room, as occasion demands, every evening, and in the daytime is transformed into a restaurant conducted by Messrs. White and Hounsom of Anaheim, and the "rations" are very good indeed. To be sure, the butter gives ou sometimes, and I have heard it darkly hinted that a panic would ensue if the supply of crackers should fail; but all these trides are minor details.

should fail; but all these trifles are minor details.

Our town is growing faster than any place I ever knew, but, notwithstanding this, I have not yet found a realestate office. Over 20 tents were put up yesterday, and still they come. The cloud of dust on the hill begins to rise in dense columns soon after sunrise every morning, betokening the coming of the hosts, and a long line of carriages continues to file in from dawn till dark. Delegations from Elsiuore, Orange, Santa Ana and many other sarrounding towns arrived on the grounds yesterday. By the way, what has happened to Frank Bartlett Post of Los Angeles, I wonder? Adjt. Cowies is its sole representative as yet. Comrade A. H. Clark acted as Officer of the Day on Tuesday, with Comrades Woolsey, Killifen, Sebastian and Leeper as details for gnard duty. On Wednesday, Comrade F. D. Sheffer was Officer of the Day, and Comrades Rockwell, Percell and Amey composed the detail.

TO THE PUBLIC.

The Bituminous Lime Rock Paving and Improvement Company
Take this opportunity of informing the citizens and property-owners of this city that the pavement laid on Main street, between First and Third streets, is NOT bituminous lime rock, but is an artificial mixture, and NOT laid by our company. We make this amouncement for the purpose of disabusing the minds of those who entertain the belief that this pavement was laid by this company, and are of those who entertain the belief that this pavement was laid by this company, and are disposed to criticise our material as being soft and not suitable for the streets or this city. The only bituminous lime rock pavement here was laid by this company, and extends on Main street from the south line of Third to Ninth street, and on Spring street from Temple to Ninth street. Bituminous lime rock close not become actif said make now the does not become soft and mushy under the heat of the sun, but always remains firm and elastic. We have already laid on the streets of this city about 500,000 square feet of this pavement, to which we take pleasure in invitant inspection. Very respectfully yours. ICE! ICE!

ICEI ICEI

Ice Ne Longer a Luxury in Les Angeles, Thanks to an Enterprising Company.

The inhabitants of this progressive and rapidly-growing city have another proof of the faith eastern capital has in its future.
There has just been completed in this city the largest and best ice manufactory and coldstorage buildings in the world, by the Los Angeles Cold Storage and Hendrick Ice companies. The ice-making capacity is 50 tons daily. Our competitors claim that cheapening the price of ice will not increase its consumption. We believe different. We believe that ice is wanted for the preservation, in private houses, of meats, milk, butter, vegetables, and for ice water, ice tea, ice cream and other purposes, and that the excribitant prices only have heretofore prevented its general use. We are confident of your patronage, as we are the direct and only cause of the reduction in price.

In connection with our ice and cold-storage buildings we have erected large amoke-houses, and offer you, through the grocers and butchers, the only meats smoked here. They are much better than other meats, which all have to be brought across the desert. Ask for our "Lilly" hams and bacon. No skippers in

A few nights ago regular city street-sweepers were put to work, and every night after the streets have been deserted these great big six-wheeled machines may be seen ambling along. Contractor Burlingame has undertaken to keep the streets clean, and the street-sweepers belong to him.

There was not a single arrest registered

There was not a single arrest registered at the police station yesterday, the entire work of the force being represented by one stray horse, which was picked up and put in the pound. It is only fair to say that most of the force was busy distributing tickets at the various polling places, and of course they could not be expected to waste any time in making arrests. At the County Jail a solitary "D.P." was brought in by a deputy constable. Durlag the day, however, a jury-nan in a rather prominent case called to find out what had become of Hattie Woolsteen, and when her case would be called. Wednesday another able crank came to see Guiteau, the man who killed the people at Garden Grove. He was told that he was mistaken in the man, and when informed that his name was Anschlag, he waiked off perfectly satisfied. There was not a single arrest registered

A WRETCHED CASE.

The Victim of an Opium Fiend and "Mac." A sad case of destitution, ill-treatment and abuse came to light at the police station vesterday which should be thoroughly investigated, and if the facts are true as stated, something should be done for the unfortunate woman who is now at the City Prison utterly penniless, and, so far as is known, without friends. Yesterday morning a woman, very poorly dressed, and with her feet on the ground. came to the station, saying that she was without money and meeded assistance. She said that her name was Mrs. Hempstead, and that she had just come out of the County Hospital, where she had been for the past three months. The woman was not at lirst inclined to talk, but she was finally prevailed upon by Jailer William—Clayton to give him her whole story. She said that she came to Los Angeles some six years ago with her husband, a man named Smith, and her parents, who afterward returned to Michigan. Smith died some time ago, when she married a waiter here by the name of Charles Hempstead. Hempstead, she s ys, was a confirmed "dope fiend," and forced her to acquire the habit. His health failed him, when he attempted to force her to enter a house of prostitution. She refused to do so, when she was put under the influence of the drug and carried to Myrtle McDonald's place, on Alameda street. As soon as she came to her senses, she caused so much trouble in her efforts to get out of the place that she was carried off and placed in a house on Sainsevain street. There was some talk about her case in the papers at the time, she said but she was in such a condition that she could not get out of the clutches of the wreter, she calls her husband. Some months ago she gave birth to a child, which, she says, was taken away from her, and she has never since seen it, and when she could be moved she was taken to the County Hospital, where she remained until Wednesday, when she was discharged. She came into the city, and a charitable stranger gave her a dollar with which she got a bed and breakfast yesterday morning, after which she came to the station. She says that while she was in the hospital her husband took her baby and disappeared with it, and that she does not know where he is. Jailer Clayten took the woman up to see Mrs. Watson, and also went to see Officer Wright of the Humane Society, and thinks that he will be able to hake some provision for her. The woman says she only wants work to get to her father, who is in Nashville, Tenn. The officers think that she may be a little sil needed assistance. She said that her name was Mrs. Hempstead, and that she had just come out of the County Hospital, where
